Document description

This document describes the protocol and tools to adopt in order to gather information on the functionality requirements and to direct the selection of the activities for the SeniorChannel Digital Interactive Television (henceforth DITV).

The document starts with the description of the setting, participants' sample, tasks, tools and procedure of the first activity, which is aimed at gathering the elderly opinion on DITV existing and desired functionalities (Section I). Then the second activity is described in the same way, with the setting, sample, tasks, tools and procedure that serve to explore older people preference on which television to produce (Section II).

The appendices contain the tools needed to carry out the abovementioned activities; specifically: the informed consent forms (APPENDIX 1); the questionnaires for the first activity (APPENDIX 2); the questionnaires (APPENDIX 3 and 4) and cards (APPENDIX 5) for the second activity, and additional pictures for the Spanish translation of the questionnaires (APPENDIX 6).

I. FIRST ACTIVITY: FUNCTIONALITY REQUIREMENTS

One difficulty encountered in eliciting requirements for the design of DITV with older adults is their lack of familiarity with the service and functionalities offered by this technology. A solution is to adopt a method inspired by Rice, Newell and Morgan (5), and called the Forum Theatre. The Forum Theatre tries to establish a common ground with the participants by staging some scenes written by a screenwriter. These scenes show various forms of interaction with the device to develop and are played by actors. In this way, participants can express their opinion on a situation that is known both to them and to the developers, and that is experienced lively at the same time at which they are asked opinions about it.

In our case, instead of staged scenes, users are exposed to short video fragments, extracted from a number of TV programs belonging to 5 different genres (news, news interview, variety show, commercial, tv series). This will remind them of the familiar experience of watching TV, and provides a starting point from which to express opinions and recommendations on existing and desired functionalities. Each fragment should allow to investigate one genre and some interactive functionalities. In fact, since the aim of the present protocol is to explore the participants opinions regarding possible interaction modalities with television content (e.g. voting or commenting via sms, chatting, reading profiles, interactive advertising, t-commerce (commercials)).

I.1 Setting

The recommended setting is a comfortable room possibly furnished as a living room in order to create a familiar environment that makes the participants feel at ease (e.g. sofas, plants, drinks...). There must be enough space for all participants, the research team, and the steady camera. Participants should have a board supporting them when filling in the questionnaires, such as the one in Figure

Date 28/03/2011	2.1 User Consultation Protocols and Tools SeniorChannel

1. It is recommended that none else stays in the room except for th people involve din the task.

I.2 Participants

The sample is constituted of 20 participants divided into 5 groups, each composed of 4 people possibly with a mixed gender composition (2 women and 2 men), aged 60 years or older, active and self-sufficient.

I.3 Tasks

The activities are composed of watching the fragment of a video and then filling an individual questionnaire about the video. Videofragments are 5, each exemplifying a different genre of TV program: news, news interview, variety show, commercial, tv series. Each group is involved in a session that lasts about 70 minutes. The initial 10 minutes are devoted to fill in the informed consent forms and provide clarifications about it. The remaining of the session is devoted to watching each of the five videos (about 2 minutes) and filling in the related questionnaire (about 10 minutes). Then another subsequent video is shown, and so on until all videos and questionnaires are used. The order in which the 5 videos are shown must be rotated in the 5 groups, so that it is not the same genre of program to be shown first or last; this will reduce the risk of having the results spoiled by a practice effect on the one hand and a fatigue effect on other other.

I.4 Tools

The tools needed to carry out these activities are:

- Informed consent forms, two copies per participant (Appendix 1)
- Video fragments of 5 different genres of TV program
- Questionnaires, one about each fragment (Appendix 2)

Date 28/03/2011	2.1 User Consultation Protocols and Tools SeniorChannel	Page 6 AAL-2009-2-090	6
-----------------	--	--------------------------	---

- Large monitor to play the video and videocameras to shoot participants while they watch the videos
- Pens, boards.

Videofragments are 5, exemplifying 5 different genres (news, news interview, variety show, commercial, tv series). It is recommended to select them from very popular, recent programs and followed by the elderly audience. It is also possible to have several options of fragments for each TV genre and let participants choose. Video fragments can be found on www.youtube.com or on the websites of national TV channels. The 5 fragments should last about 2 minutes (a time sufficient for recognizing of the type of the tv content without making the session to long and tiresome) except for commercials which are usually 30-45 sec long.

Just as an example, a list of fragments in Italian is offered below.

- NEWS: «Tg 1» (2:20 min): <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=S8IEhY6wdgs>
- NEWS INTERVIEWS: «Porta a Porta» (2:12 min)
- <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Lfy-JghH2KE>
- VARIETY SHOW: «Ballando con le stelle» (1:17min)
- <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=eheySRkUqzQ>
- COMMERCIAL: «Poltrone Sofa'» (0:32min)
- <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=rS0gtBYb65w>
- TV SERIES: «Cesaroni» (1:52 min)
- <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=uJGsiq38Ng>

The questionnaires are going to be administered to the participants during the breaks between the videos projected. They aim is to gather their opinion on possible interaction modalities with the television content. The questionnaires are going to be administered to each participants individually. They are in APPENDIX 2. All questions are mandatory.

I.5 Procedure

1.5.1 Preparation work

Participants reclutation and activity schedule: Participants are people aged 60 or over but still active. The same people can participate in the two activities foreseen in this document (the functionality requirements and the content requirements) but in this case it is advisable to recruit them in different days, so as not to be involved in the two activities in the same day. While scheduling the group, 2 hours for each group plus a reasonable break to allow clearing the room for the next group should be considered.

Material: The needed tools are listed in section I.4.

Equipment: There must be enough space for all participants, the research team, and the steady camera. Participants should have a surface available to support them when filling in the questionnaires, such as a table or a board. The informed consents and the questionnaires are handed by the experimenter when necessary. There has to be a large monitor on which to display the video fragments placed in front of the participant group. The steady camera needs to be placed in a point where it can video-register the whole setting so as to capture possible interactions within the participants and those between the participants and the experimenter.

1.5.2 Session script

- The participants enter in the lab/the room, and make themselves comfortable in the devoted space.
- The experimenter introduces him/herself and his/her collaborators with names and affiliations.

„Good morning/day to everyone. My name is (name and surname) and I work for (affiliation). Beside me there is my collaborator (name and surname) from the (affiliation) who will help me in this session. As you already know, we are developing an interactive television for the SeniorChannel project and we need your opinions. I thank you in advance for participating in this research. Let's start. I would like to advice you that for the activities you are going to be involved in you might need your glasses, so please keep them close to you and use them if necessary. Now we'll give you the informed consent sheets“

- The experimenter/collaborator gives the informed consent to each participant. Then he/she invites the participants to read and sign it, encouraging them to ask for clarifications if needed.

„Now I would kindly ask you to read and sign the informed consent. The informed consent is a document that gives you all the necessary information about the activities we are going to involve you in, and collects your agreement to participate by way of the signature you put at the end of it. If you need further clarifications, feel free to ask questions before signing it. One copy is for us and one will be left with you“

- When the consents are signed, the experimenter/collaborator collects them.

- Before starting with the first activity the experimenter says:

„ Now we will show you some videos representing various types of TV show. You are kindly asked to watch them as you normally do at home, also commenting aloud with the other people here if you like. When the video fragment ends, you will be asked to fill in a questionnaire alone. Do not worry about the video details nor the story because we are not going to ask you about them. “

The video is shown and the camera starts recording. While watching the video the participants are allowed to talk to each other as the purpose is to make them feel at home and live a familiar tv fruition experience. The videos are shown in a pre-defined order:

1st GROUP = News Interview, Variety show, Commercial, TV Series, News

2nd GROUP = Variety show, Commercial, TV Series, News, News Interview

3rd GROUP = Commercial, TV Series, News, News Interview, Variety show

4th GROUP = TV Series, News, News Interview, Variety show, Commercial

5th GROUP = News, News Interview, Variety show, Commercial, TV Series.

Date 28/03/2011	2.1 User Consultation Protocols and Tools SeniorChannel	Page 9 AAL-2009-2-090

- As each video ends, the related questionnaire is administered to the participants, who are invited to work individually. After the first video ends, the experimenter says:

„From now on, after each video watched, you will be given a questionnaire to fill in. You will have approximately 10 minutes for answering the questions, but you don't have to worry, you won't need longer. Please, fill in the questionnaires alone, without talking with the other people. Feel free to ask me for clarifications about the questionnaires content. Please do not skip any question.“
- After 10 minutes, the experimenter/collaborator stops the camera, collects the questionnaires, checks for their completeness and introduces the next video.
- This procedure is repeated for all 5 videos and related questionnaires
- After the participants deliver the last questionnaire, the experimenter concludes:

„If there is nothing else you would like to say I would end to this activity, thanking you all for your hints and comments. I also would like to remind you that, in case you need other clarifications or you are simply interested in the research results, you can contact the person mentioned on the informed consent.“
- The questionnaires are archived, the videorecording is saved and identified with name and date.

II. SECOND ACTIVITY: CONTENT PREFERENCES

The goal of this activity is to define the users' preferred content in case they have to produce some TV content on their own. A questionnaire serves as a starting point for the subsequent task in which participants have to voice their opinion and rank the TV content. The task is inspired by the technique of card sorting, which is a popular method to involve final users in the design process and ranking/categorizing their requirements, especially in the definition of information architecture and website navigation layout. Each requirement is written on a card and the participants are asked to group the cards based on similarity or importance. This activity supports reasoning and group discussion to achieve a shared, structured result in the end of the discussion.

I.1 Setting

The ideal environment is constituted of a large table around which participants can sit. There should be enough space for 10 participants (4 participants in Group C), the research team and the steady camera. It is recommended that none else stays in the room except for the people involved in the task.

II.2 Participants

The sample (n=24) is constituted of 3 groups: 2 groups of 10 seniors and one group of 4 elderly service caregivers.

It is advisable to employ, in case it is feasible, the same elderly people who participated in the first activity described in this document. In any case, they need to be 60 years or older, active and self-sufficient. Gender needs to be balanced within each group (5 women and 5 men, or 2 men and 2 women in case of the small service providers group).

II.3 Tasks

Each session lasts 45 minutes. First participants read the informed consent, asks for clarification, if they wish so, and then sign the forms (about 10 minutes). Then they are asked to fill one of the two questionnaire types according their specific role in this data collection, i.e. elderly person or service provider (about 20 minutes). Finally they execute the card sorting task (about 15 minutes).

II.4 Tools

The tools needed to carry out these activities are:

- Informed consents, two copies per participant (Appendix 1)
- Questionnaires, one per participant's type (Appendix 3 and 4)
- Card set (Appendix 6)
- Videocameras to shoot participants while they execute the card sorting task
- Pens, boards.

Two types of questionnaires have been built, one for elderly people and the other for the service providers. all questions are mandatory and the administration is individual. The two types of questionnaire are in APPENDIX 3 and 4.

The cards for the group task have on the front side, the symbol of the activities proposed, the same that are printed on the questionnaire. The participants are asked to sort, all together, the cards in the order of importance by discussing aloud about the motivations lying behind their decisions. The cards images are in APPENDIX 4.

II.5.1 Preparation work

Groups organization and reclutation: Participants are people aged 60 or over but still active. The same people can participate in the two activities foreseen in this document (the functionality requirements and the content requirements) but in this case it is advisable to recruit them in different days, so as not to be involved in the two activities in the same day. While scheduling the group, 90 minutes for each group plus a reasonable break to allow clearing the room for the next group should be considered.

Material: The needed tools are listed in section I.4.

Equipment: There must be enough space for all participants, the research team, and the steady camera. Participants should have a surface available to support them when filling in the questionnaires, such as a table or a board. The informed consents and the questionnaires are handed by the experimenter when necessary. There has to be a large monitor on which to display the video fragments placed in front of the participant group. The steady camera needs to be placed in a point where it can video-register the whole setting so as to capture possible interactions within the participants and those between the participants and the experimenter. Only the card siring task is videorecorded.

II.5.2 Task session

- The participants enter the lab/the room, make themselves comfortable.
- The experimenter introduces him/herself and his/her collaborators with names and affiliations and invites all participant (even though they filled in the consent for activity one) to fill in the informed consent form for this second activity.

«Good morning/day to everyone. My name is (name and surname) and I work for (affiliation). Beside me there is my collaborator (name and surname) from the (affiliation) who will help me in this session. As you already know, we are developing an interactive television for the SeniorChannel project and we need your opinions. I thank you in advance for participating in this research. Let's start. advice you that for the activities you are going to be involved in you might need your glasses, so please keep them close to you and use them if necessary. Now we'll give you the informed consent sheets. One copy is for us and one will be left with you »

- The experimenter/collaborator gives the informed consent to each participant. Then he/she invites the participants to read and sign it, encouraging them to ask for clarifications if needed.

„Now please read and sign the informed consent. As you know the informed consent is a document that gives you all the necessary information about the activities we are going to involve you in, and collects your agreement to participate by way of the signature you put at the end of it. If you need further clarifications, feel free to ask questions before signing it. One copy is for us and one will be left with you“

- When the consents are signed, the experimenter/collaborator collects them.
- The experimenter introduces the next task:

„ Now I would like to ask you to compile the questionnaires that we are going to hand you. You will have approximately 20 minutes for answering the questions, without talking to the other participants. If you need any clarifications about the questions, please ask me. Please make also sure that the questionnaires are completed in each part before returning them.“

- After 20 minutes the experimenter/collaborator collects the questionnaires and checks for their completeness.
- After the participants return the questionnaire, the experimenter takes the cards and proposes the group task:

„To conclude this activity, I would like to propose you a group task. Here I have a deck of cards. As you can see, on the front side of the cards there is a picture corresponding to the ones that you have already seen on the questionnaires, representing possible TV content to produce. The name of the content is on the back of each card. You are required as a group to sort the contents by importance, deciding together as a group which content is more interesting for you to produce. You will have to return me a ranking. You will be videorecorded during this activity“

- The experimenter starts the videorecording and the task begins, lasting about 15 minutes.
- After 14 minutes the experimenter reminds that there is a few minutes left. When the group declared to have completed the task, the researcher makes sure that all contents are ranked. Then h/she stops the recording and says:
„If there is nothing else you would like to say I would end this second activity, thanking you all again for your participation. I would also like to remind you that, in case you need other clarifications or you are simply interested in the research results, you can contact the person mentioned on the informed consent. “
- The questionnaires are archived, the videorecording is saved and identified with name and date, the card rankin is taken a picture of.

su participación en este trabajo de investigación. Empecemos. Les aconsejaría que para las actividades que vamos a realizar quizás necesiten sus gafas, por lo que ténganlas a mano por si acaso. - After 20 minutes the experimenter/collaborator collects the questionnaires and checks for their completeness.

Tras los 20 minutos el responsable/colaborador recogerá los cuestionarios y revisará que estén completos.

- After the participants return the questionnaire, the experimenter takes the cards and proposes the group task:

„To conclude this activity, I would like to propose you a group task. Here I have a deck of cards. As you can see, on the front side of the cards there is a picture corresponding to the ones that you have already seen on the questionnaires, representing possible TV content to produce. The name of the content is on the back of each card. You are required as a group to sort the contents by importance, deciding together as a group which content is more interesting for you to produce. You will have to return me a ranking. You will be videorecorded during this activity“

Después de que los participantes hayan devuelto los cuestionarios, el coordinador cogerá las cartas y propondrá una actividad de grupo:

„Para concluir esta actividad, me gustaría proponerles una tarea de grupo. Aquí tengo una baraja de cartas. Como pueden ver, en la en una de las caras de las cartas hay un dibujo o imagen correspondiente a las que ya han visto en los cuestionarios, y que representan posibles contenidos de TV a realizar. Se les pide como grupo que organicen los contenidos por importancia, decidiendo conjuntamente qué contenido sería más interesante producir. Me deben entregar un ranking. Van a ser grabados durante la realización de la actividad.
